Greenbelt Included Among MNCPPC Historical Sites

The Prince Georges County Planning Board was to have taken official action to adopt their portion of the bi-county Historic Sites Identification Map at the meeting in the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission's Regional Office Building in Riverdale, Wednesday, January 21.

The adoption of the Sites Map, as an amendment to the General Plan for the Physical Development of the Maryland-Washington Regional District in Prince Georges County, was the first item on the agenda for that day, scheduled for 9:30 a.m.

The Historic Sites Identification document consists of a map containing the general location and a brief description of each of the 187 sites in Prince Georges County that have been identified by the Commission staff as having historic value for the area and, in many instances, historic significance for the country.

Greenbelt Sites

Designated as historical sites on the map are the following Greenbelt locations: Indian Springs, where Indian tribes held their conclaves prior to the arrival of the white man. Among the list of the local tribes to inhabit the area were the warlike Senecas and Sinnehannas. Until recent years, arrowheads were found in the woods.

Walker Cemetery where revolutionary war figures, Isaac Walker and his son, Nathan, were buried. In 1756 Isaac Walker received a patent of land for 200 acres for the south-western portion of Greenbelt. A descendant sold the property to the Federal Government when the town of Greenbelt was in the early planning stages. A monument was erected here by the DAR in 1938.

City of Greenbelt, a development potentially historic by virtue of its having been the first experience by the Federal Government in providing planned community housing for the low income level. Only the oldest portion of the town is of the original design.

Original Map Amended

The first Preliminary Map, published by the Commission last Spring, showed 186 sites in the county. The document to be adopted is an amended version of this original map with the deletion of five sites and the addition of six sites. This amended document will be available to the public shortly after it is adopted by the Board and readied for printing.

Changes to the original document were made as a result of comments made by persons who spoke at the public hearing held last May on the subject of this amendment to the General Plan. The Commission staff also consulted with persons of the Prince Georges County Historical Society, The Maryland Historical Society, the Maryland Historical Trust, selected State and County departments, municipalities, and knowledgeable individuals for information regarding the study.

Retention of Cipriano Road Name Assured

by Elaine Skolnik

Cipriano Road, an historical landmark named after "Pop" Cipriano, will not be renamed after all. This was the decision of the Prince Georges County Planning Board at its meeting on Jan. 19. The Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission's Technical Staff, in its efforts to solve the present confusion at the intersecting Cipriano, Good Luck and Telegraph Roads, had recommended that Cipriano Road be renamed Telegraph Road and thus reduce three road names to two. The staff had also recommended that another piece of ground, slated to be developed later in the immediate area, be named Cipriano Road.

The Greenbelt City Council vigorously opposed the renaming of Cipriano Road, which is located about a mile and a half east of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway opposite NASA. It felt that the road paid tribute to the man who was a pioneer in early road construction in this area. Objections to the change were also voiced by local citizens and state and county officials.

The solution reached was to eliminate the name Telegraph Road. Good Luck Road will run east-west from Kenilworth Ave. to Springfield Road. That part of the road east of the Cipriano intersection, formerly named Telegraph Road, will thus be renamed Good Luck Road on or about Feb. 16.

Cipriano Road will now run north-south from Greenbelt Road (formerly Glenn Dale Road) to the Lanham-Severn Road. This represents an extension of the present Cipriano Road, which formerly went only as far as the intersection with Good Luck Road, where it became Telegraph Road. This portion south of the intersection will be changed to Cipriano Road in early March.

Cipriano Road

"Pop" Cipriano, 92 years old, settled in this area in 1910. He bought 100 acres off Glenn Dale Rd. (then known as Prince Garden Road). He was the moving force in making the road passable, using his own labor, and later in getting the county to open a two-mile stretch of the road, connecting the communities of Glenn Dale and Branchville for the first time. This was in 1932. A gala party was held, attended by many high officials, who hailed this important link which cut the distance over improved roads from Branchville to Glenn Dale from 17 to 6 miles.

Good Luck Road

In existence over 100 years, Good Luck Road's route led to the small village of Good Luck (near what is now known as DuVal High School). The road was named after a Mr. Luck, who lived in the village.

Telegraph Road

Telegraph Road followed the original telegraph lines that went from New York to Richmond, Virginia. Remnants of the road exist in Virginia and in Lanham.

GHI Urges Action On Perimeter Road

The Greenbelt Homes, Inc. board of directors in a special meeting on January 15, approved two motions relating to the proposed perimeter road. The effect of one motion was to call for a citizen effort to bring about inclusion of the perimeter road in the state's two-year road plan. The Board urged that the Citizens for a Planned Greenbelt or an ad hoc group take the lead in this effort. It pledged the cooperation of GHI in the endeavor.

The other motion urged the city to study the potential traffic impact arising from the location of the three-school site, asking that attention in particular be given to the access road to the site. Earlier in the evening the board had met with its Special Committee on the Perimeter Road which is studying the entire question of the road with particular emphasis on its possible impact on GHI residents.

Ice Skating Policy

The Greenbelt Lake is open for ice skating when weather conditions are favorable. In order to provide a wholesome, safe activity, the City has developed certain guidelines that should be followed. During cold weather, persons interested in ascertaining the condition of the ice at the lake should call the Greenbelt Police Department, 474-8000. It is impossible to continually test ice thickness over all areas of the lake, so skating will always be at the risk of the participant. Recommended areas of skating are the shore lines and the bay around the peninsula. The lake area around the dam and spillway should be avoided, as open water is usually found in these areas. Parents should accompany young children. Skaters should also avoid gathering in groups on the ice.

The Recreation Department will attempt to provide supervision at the lake during week days from 3 p.m. to dark and on holidays, Saturdays and Sundays from 9 a.m. to dark. No skating will be allowed on the lake after dark. No fires will be allowed at the lake except those provided by the City because of the scarcity of firewood and danger from brush fires.

All skaters and parents should keep in mind the dangers involved in ice sports. A person who falls through the ice is in danger of drowning and freezing if he is not cared for immediately.

PROFUSION OF ENVIRONMENTAL PROBLEMS CONFRONT COUNCIL

by Virginia Beauchamp

Human ecology—man's relation to his environment—seems to be the in subject these days. The phrase was not used at Monday night's city council meeting; but if there was any unifying theme for the assortment of petitions and items of business which council was called upon to consider, the nature of the environment in which we live would appear to have had foremost emphasis.

The subject was introduced early in the meeting when a local citizen, Carl Smith, representing a newly formed group called Citizens for a Better Environment called on council to offer a resolution of support for a planned nation-wide "teach-in" day on April 22 at which some of the multitude of problems concerned with our environment would be studied. Expressing general approval of Smith's request, council referred the matter to the Advisory Planning Board for specific actions that might be recommended for the city to take.

Traffic Problems

On a more local problem generated by the increasing concentration of population in the area, Herbert Ginsburg, a resident of University Square, petitioned for council action to eliminate a dangerous traffic intersection at Greenbelt Rd. and Armory Drive. He requested that the Yield sign at the end of the feeder road leading west on Greenbelt Rd. from Southway be changed to a stop sign. There have been several near misses at that intersection, he noted—especially when cars making a right turn into Armory Drive cut across traffic moving out of Greenbelt on Southway.

Councilwoman Elizabeth Maffay mentioned another dangerous intersection, where traffic exiting from the Beltway south on Kenilworth proper. City Manager James K. Giese noted that an extension of the left lane from Kenilworth east into Greenbelt Rd. had been promised for last summer. He felt that the backup of traffic at that point during the rush hour interfered with traffic exiting from the Beltway. Giese was directed to contact the State Roads Commission, expressing council's concern over these two danger points and requesting further study of the problem.

Police Mutual Aid

Greenbelt's relationship to the municipal, county, state and federal jurisdictions within the metropolitan area also came under scrutiny when a proposal by the Washington Metropolitan Council of Governments (COG) that Greenbelt join in a police mutual aid agreement was discussed. The agreement would permit various jurisdictions to provide police assistance outside of their territorial boundaries when a state of emergency exists. City solicitor Emmett Nanna questioned the action as a matter of policy. "What possible advantage could result for Greenbelt?" he asked. Giese answered that he saw no direct benefit to Greenbelt but felt that Greenbelt, as a participant in COG, should take an interest in metropolitan problems. He did not foresee that Greenbelt police would be called into the center city but suggested that they might relieve the county police in matters of local patrol if an emergency in the city called for massive assistance from county police. In any case, he pointed out, any operational plan developed under the terms of the agreement must be specifically approved by the City before the local Police Department could be called upon.

Supporting Arguments

George Beauchamp, a member of the audience, speaking in his professional capacity as a disaster specialist, strongly supported the City Manager. He noted, in contradiction of Nanna's query, that very real benefits might accrue to Greenbelt if such an agreement were entered into. He hypothesized that in Greenbelt, as in other towns in recent years, a gasoline truck might conceivably explode in the community center, causing extensive fires. In such a case, he said, a major problem would be how to control the large number of sight-seers and would-be helpers who would run into the area. The Greenbelt and County police might well be over-extended and Greenbelt would be only too glad to have outside resources to draw upon. He suggested that Fire and Rescue Squads in the area already have mutual assistance agreements and that similar pacts among police jurisdictions have proved to be beneficial. He agreed with both Giese and Nanna, however, that the operating agreement must be carefully written to fit Greenbelt's real needs.

Council Action

Council directed the city manager to send a letter to the chairman of COG, expressing the city's "keen interest" in the proposal and requesting the latest specific information on the operational plan now being drafted. At the same time they suggested that other large municipalities in the area, not now members of COG, also be invited to join in the agreement.

In a petition by former councilman Leo Gerton, who spoke on behalf of the 24 families who had moved back into the Greenbelt Plaza apartment building that had been gutted by fire last April, council directed the city manager to contact the County Building Inspector's office to see whether fire control provisions had been met by the owners of the building when it was constructed.

Other Actions

In other actions, council approved the initial allocation of $200 for secretarial help for the ad hoc committee on city elections, considered for second reading and passed a new ordinance awarding the issue of general obligation bonds for capital improvements in the amount of $950,000 to Alex. Brown & Sons and Baker, Watts & Company for an average interest rate of 7.133%, transferred funds within departments, and passed unanimously a motion to make a "non-negotiable" offer of $80,000 for the Lutheran Church site on Ridge Rd.

Council also introduced for first reading a motion to change the job descriptions for police-officer-patrolmen and the city clerk, and directed the city manager to draft a letter to the County Commissioners, requesting that funds be provided to hire a part-time recreation assistant for the Youth Center. Giese was also asked to contact the County concerning the need for placing a crossing guard near the Springhill Lake School.

Beginning Golf Clinic

A golf clinic for beginning golfers will be held Saturday, Jan. 31, at Prince Georges Community College. To assist the beginning golfer, there will be movies, demonstrations with a golfing instructor, and an opportunity to practice the newly learned skills.

In addition, the golfers will have a chance to review their practice through the use of television replays of the practice sessions.

The clinic will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Field House.

For information concerning fees, contact the Community Services Office, Prince Georges Community College, 301 Largo Road, Largo, Maryland 20870, or phone 336-6000, ext. 218.

"Aid" to Non-public Schools

As a Catholic parent with two children attending public schools and one attending a parochial school, please allow me to express a few thoughts on the issue of "aid" to non-public schools. As I view the arguments, I'm forced to wonder whether we're being entirely honest with each other in telling it like it is.

From my own vantage point, I see a social structure in operation in which a majority makes, interprets, and implements laws which affect all of us. Too often, it seems decisions are made which place me, as a minority group member, at a distinct disadvantage and which make me wonder if I'm being taken. I have real difficulty with the proposition that it is constitutional for the State to take my tax money for use in educating my children in a school of its choice, but unconstitutional for the State to return some of my tax money to me for use in educating my children in a school of my choice. I see massive public aid programs being administered, partially with my tax money, wherein persons of all religions and beliefs are given money, based on need, with nary a question as to whether part of this money will find its way into a church tithe, collection plate, or Ethical Society, thereby aiding religions. Conspicuously absent are the constitutional problems which one would expect to be raised by the attendance, under the G. I. Bill, of millions of persons of all religions at institutions operated by many religions. I learn, from personal experience, that there are two standards of justice being administered to my own children and these standards are totally unrelated to the quality of education received. I listen to all the arguments and wonder whether they're really based on 16th century animosities rather than 1970 pluralistic realities.

The principle of thinking about all these things leaves me with the distinct impression that the reason my children are treated differently, by the majority, has little to do with a general principle forbidding possible aid to religion, but has all to do with my own particular religion. And this bothers me. It seems to me that once I've determined the type of education I want for my children, then I should expect equitable treatment in the distribution of my tax funds. When a need exists for the use of my tax money for the education of my children at an institution which meets Federal and State educational standards, the government has no right to interject the un-American principle, "What's your religion?"

The principle of separation of Church and State is a sacred one. But when extreme interpretations result in the building of a wall between me and my tax money, then I believe that the principle is being misapplied and that a reappraisal is urgently needed.

Lutheran Church

I note that the City Council is prepared to buy the Lutheran Church site; one Councilman said it will only cost us a penny or two on the tax-rate. The City Council may be complacent at the image of the church becoming a profit-making organization but I personally object to helping to pay for a new Lutheran Church, and I object to it that a member of the Board of Trustees insinuates we should be happy to pay their price, otherwise they will be forced to sell to a commercial interest - for even more money - what chutzpah . . .

The land we are being asked to buy was obtained by the Church from the public domain at $500.00 per acre; the land for the new church on the south side of Greenbelt Road was obtained in the same fashion because the church is a tax-free and non-profit organization. The church finds it no longer needs the old location, and properly speaking they should give back to the public domain the three acres on which the old church stands and be reimbursed at some reasonable figure, say, 6% plus normal land growth.

It shocks me to discover the church has gone into commercial business. One vestryman talks about the $120,000.00 they can get from a commercial developer, and we are practically being coerced into meeting that price or else.

I very much dislike the precedent here being established. If the Lutheran Church is successful, what's to prevent every other church in town from doing the same and taking the profits to build a bigger and handsomer church somewhere else?

I think our City Council should be put on notice that at least one taxpayer in this town objects to the Church becoming a commercial profit-making institution.

There will be an open meeting of Boys Club for the purpose of planning for the coming year on January 29. Watch for time and place.

Conservation Needed

To the Editor:

Concern for environmental quality, particularly in regard to parkland and zoning, is very much in the Greenbelt tradition. Some serious problems are demanding our attention. For instance, the residents of Springhill Lake need a park, which could well be located in the Indian Creek valley north of the apartment complex. However, Indian Creek is badly polluted by silt from the erosion at Beltway Plaza and also by oil from the gas stations there.

Similar pollution could result from unenlightened development of the Golden Triangle. The eroded Smith-Ewing tract generously contributes to the silting of local streams, and like other open spaces in Greenbelt, is strewn with solid waste such as rusting car bodies, abandoned building supplies and trash.

Not to be minimized is the air pollution from the smokestacks of the cement factory and the GHI heating plants.

Protecting and preserving residential Greenbelt's natural wooded areas and constructing walkways and bicycle paths to interconnect old Greenbelt, Springhill Lake, Beltway Plaza, Goddard and the Greenbelt Regional Park, will help return this city to the people who have a right to enjoy their surroundings.

Greenbelt needs a comprehensive conservation program to promote new city and county laws and to insist on enforcement of existing laws.

To act on these and related matters, there is now a non-partisan Greenbelt coalition for conservation. Citizens for a Better Environment. Individuals and organizations can join by calling me at 345-1052.

The Police Blotter

Two weeks ago, a breaking and entering took place at the A and P store in Beltway Plaza. An alert citizen reported signs of suspicious activities to the police at about 9 p.m. The officer who responded to the call found that a side door to the store had been forced. Two juveniles were found hiding in a false ceiling; later, a third juvenile was found elsewhere in the store. The three have been charged with breaking and entering and will be tried before Juvenile Court.

A 14-year-old was charged with indecent exposure following a report from a lady resident of 8 Court, Research Rd. The youth was sitting inside a car, and the woman was able to get the license number. Police stopped the car, which by then contained three juveniles and questioning revealed which one was responsible.

Following an argument in the 10 court of Plateau Place between two men one of them tried to run down the other with his vehicle. The car struck the man's hip although the injuries were not serious. An assault warrant is on file for the operator of the car.

About $400 was taken recently from an unlocked safe at the Co-op gas station on Southway. The station was open for business at the time. This crime has not been solved yet.

City Notes

The city manager and a regional representative for the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, Howard LePoirs, were scheduled to meet on January 22 to discuss several matters pertaining to parkland acquisition and development within the city. Among these were possible applications for acquisition of new land under the Open Space program, such as the Lutheran Church site, the Springhill Lake golf course, and portions of parcels 1, 3, 4, and 5. The latter pieces involve strips along the rights-of-way for the perimeter road. Also slated for discussion was a development program for the parklands already acquired.

The city learned indirectly that Contee Sand & Gravel Co. has been hired to finish construction of the streets in Charlestowne Village, Lakecrest Drive and Prince James Way. The city has not yet received verification from the developer, Charles Burton Builders.

The city has installed new skating signs around the lake. These are color coded - red for no skating, yellow indicating caution - stay away, and green showing skating is permitted at your own risk. These are placards rather than permanent signs, and will be changed with conditions and removed during the summer months. The Recreation Dept. has tried to keep someone on duty at the lake during the periods when people are skating. The attendant maintains a fire and keeps rescue equipment nearby. Large crowds were reported all last week.

Three new refuse collectors have been hired by the city. Two new police officers are now undergoing final clearance. Their new hiring should be announced shortly.

IT'S THE LAW

Unless specifically posted, there are no time restrictions for parking on streets. Section 14-6 of the Greenbelt traffic code provides, however, that no person shall abandon, park, or store any unlicensed, inoperative or disabled vehicle on a public street. The traffic code code further provides that when necessary the City Manager may declare emergency "No Parking" and have towed away any vehicle parked 12 hours after notice of "No Parking" signs are erected.

Therefore, any resident leaving a car parked on the street for extended periods of time is responsible to check his car regularly. If a car is left on the street while the owner is out of town, he should have a neighbor keep watch on it and be able to move it, if necessary.

Community Church To Present PROBE

The Greenbelt Community Church will present another program in its PROBE series of adult discussion groups. Beginning Sunday, Jan. 25 at 11 a.m., the series is free, non-denominational and open to the public.

Entitled "Biting The Hand That Feeds You," this eight week session will deal with the relation between human beings and their environment.

Moderator for the first session will be William Goodman, a two-term member of the Maryland State Legislature from Prince Georges County. A member of the Environmental Matters Committee, Goodman is Chairman of the Subcommittee on National Resources. As chairman, Goodman drafted and introduced the bill on the wetlands. He will speak on the conservation of our natural resources.

Ski Trip to Round Top

The Prince Georges County Recreation Department is planning a ski trip for all interested teen club members and guests to Round Top, Lewisberry, Pa., for Wednesday, January 28, from 6:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Greenbelt Grab-bag . . . by Punchin' Judy

In order to protect the privacy of my subconscious, I'd like to ask you Freudians to tune out while I tell the rest of our readers of a recurrent dream that haunts me. In this dream, I find myself in a predicament, but fortunately there's a phone handy. The problem is that when I try to use it, the dial becomes limp as a Dali watch. If I actually manage to dial, I get a wrong number or a maddeningly dense operator intervenes. I used to think I alone had telephone paranoia. However the movie "The President's Analyst" dealt with a related theme, so I suppose there are others of my ilk. I guess you'd call it a telephone hang-up.

Nevertheless, I assure you that I hold no grudge against the phone company and I pay my bills on time, mostly. Not only that, but I want you to know that, without publicity, without fanfare, they have inaugurated a new public service. I found out about it accidentally, recently, when my touch tone needed replacement. The new instrument, in addition to the usual numbers and letters, had two extra buttons, one marked with an ampersand and one with a star. Our family puzzled over these additions until my son could stand the suspense no longer. He called C & P and was able to get the answer. He looked rather white and shaken when he passed on the information to me. "It's just as we expected," he murmured brokenly. "The man says it's for the future."

Staggering though the thought may be, you must admit it's a marvelous breakthrough. For the future! Imagine being able to make a call to the future! This is a great service indeed, and I can imagine all kinds of useful possibilities. For instance, you could make a doctor's appointment for next week, and instead of making a note on your calendar you could place a call seven days into the future and say to yourself, "Hey, dum-dum, don't forget that you've got to get your hay fever shots today." Or if you have a tendency not to remember your mother-in-law's birthday, why not call her right now for the thirteenth of next month.

We could hardly wait to try out this remarkable development, but unfortunately there's a catch. Whenever we press those two buttons we get a busy signal. Apparently the future is very, very busy.

In my usual spirit of helpfulness, I would like to make a suggestion

MNCPPC Seeks Man For Top Legal Position

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission is looking for the right man to fill its top legal department job; that of general counsel to the ten-member regional agency which serves Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

The vacancy, created by the resignation of Harry W. Lerch to accept an appointment as delegate Maryland General Assembly, calls for an attorney with five years experience, or the equivalent, in full-time legal practice. Trial and appellate experience, the Commission says, as well as experience in administration, corporate, condemnation and real property (including subdivision and zoning) law will be helpful.

Applicants for the position, according to the Commission, "must be able to think quickly and clearly and to advise the Commission and Planning Boards of their legal rights and obligations, often in the presence of potential litigants and adversaries."

Candidates for appointment to this position must also have the necessary administrative ability to direct the functions and responsibilities of a legal department which includes five lawyers.

The salary is to be negotiated and the position offers a wide range of fringe benefits.

Interested attorneys may send confidential inquiries or applications to: Robert C. McDonnell, Executive Director The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, 8787 Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring, Maryland, 20907.

to the telephone people. Calling the future is a groove, but what would be really cool is calling the past! Wouldn't it be great to call a broker in 1934 and buy a couple of hundred shares of AT&T? What I'd really like to do is call Alexander Graham Bell. Just imagine his surprise. He has just made his first telephone and all of a sudden it rings. He picks up the receiver and who do you suppose is calling? That's right, it's Punchin' Judy, saying, "Hello, Mr. Bell. This is your friendly telephone solicitor telling you that you have won a series of free dancing lessons if you can just answer the following easy question . . ."

Don't Feed Wild Animals

Once again the Department of Natural Resources is faced with the season when many calls and letters come in seeking information on winter feeding of game, particularly deer, turkey and quail.

While supplemental feeding during the hardest part of winter may seem to be humane, studies by game biologists show that it generally does more harm than good. There are two natural factors that insure survival of wildlife. One is the winter culling of weaker individuals that provides the hardest breeding stock. Secondly, nearly all species produce more young than their habitat can support.

Artificial feeding interferes with these natural factors and promotes overpopulation. Feeding points, because they are visited by so many animals, also serve as transmission points of disease and parasites.

The Department of Game and Inland Fish conducts periodic air and ground checks on wildlife status during the rough weather. These surveys show that despite the heavy snow in western Maryland, the game there is in good condition. Both air and ground surveillance will be continued in order to detect any changes in the present situation.

Pre-Addressed Label on Tax Form Helps Avoid Errors

Many income tax errors, particularly those that delay refunds, can be eliminated by using the pre-addressed label on forms received in the mail. Income tax returns with labels can be quickly identified and processed since they contain necessary identifying information, Irving Machiz, District Director of Internal Revenue for Maryland and the District of Columbia, said today.

If your name or address has changed, make the necessary corrections on the label and lightly strike through the wrong preprinted information. If you have a refund due, this will help insure delivery of the check to the correct address.

Taxpayers should also verify that their correct social security number is entered on the return they file.

The filing deadline for 1969 tax returns is April 15, 1970.

AAA URGES BIKE SAFETY

Did Santa bring your child a bicycle this Christmas?

If so, the American Automobile Association asks parents to remember this:

A bicycle is not a toy. It is possible that this will be the child's first active encounter with fast-moving traffic. There are a few questions parents should answer concerning bicycles and children:

—Is your child old enough to understand his responsibility in traffic? Keep a bike in good condition? Practice a safe bicycling code?

—Will he get proper training and instruction in bicycle safety before he is permitted to ride in the street?

—Are there safe places for him to ride a bike near home?

AAA advises parents to check with local authorities to be certain both parents and child know the laws affecting cycles. Some communities require licensing of bicycles, and others forbid use of bikes on sidewalks. Some state laws, for example, give parents the responsibility for equipping their child's bike with a front lamp for night riding, a red rear reflector or lamp and a horn, bell or other sounding device.

Safe-riding suggestions from the AAA include:

—Keep well back from moving cars; they may stop suddenly.

—Be alert for pedestrians who might step from between parked cars.

—Watch out for doors of parked cars that might be opened suddenly.

—Avoid riding too fast downhill or on rough, slippery roads.

—Show good sportsmanship to pedestrians, other bike riders and motorists.

—Signal for turns and stops.

—Keep both hands on the handlebars except when signaling for turns.

—Be seen when riding at night. Have a good headlight and tail-light or reflector and wear light-colored clothing.

BOWLING CHAMPS

The first half of the season having been completed, Team No. 4 of the Boxwood Mixed bowling league has been declared champions. This team is presently captained by Roy Cowell. The team was formerly captained by the late Peggy Smith. Ray Smith, her husband, together with his two surviving sons, is still confined to Walter Reed hospital.

IT'S THE LAW

On January 15 a new City Ordinance took effect which provides a comprehensive traffic code for the City of Greenbelt. The code regulates speed, traffic signs, parking, bicycles, and pedestrians. Moving traffic regulations, other than for speed, are provided for by State law. The new code consolidates thirty-eight previous City ordinances into one and adds a number of other sections based upon model codes.

Because citizens may not be aware of new restrictions added or, for that matter, existing regulations, this newspaper will publish various ordinance provisions in this and following issues. Look for these regulations under the heading "It's the Law."
